et Citoyenneté Canada

Background

The Mental Health Promotion in Immigrant and Refugee Serving Organizations Project (MHP Project) is funded by Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) through the Settlement Program Service Delivery Improvements (SDI) Funding Stream. As the lead organization on this project, the Ontario Council of Agencies Serving Immigrants (OCASI) partnered with community organizations across three sectors (immigrant settlement, primary care and mental health) to carry out the project over three years (2018 – 2021). The project's overall goal was to build the capacity of immigrant and refugee serving organizations (ISOs) to promote newcomer mental health (MH) and wellbeing and increase their capacity to respond to mental health issues. The project aimed to strengthen collaboration and partnerships between the three sectors through the development and implementation of the integrated mental health promotion (MHP) model.

Overview & Agenda

Overview

On March 2nd & 3rd, 2021, OCASI - Ontario Council of Agencies Serving Immigrants hosted a Knowledge Exchange Event on the topic of Mental Health Promotion in Immigrant and Refugee Serving Organizations. Over the three years, OCASI has been working closely with partners to develop, implement and evaluate an Integrated Mental Health Promotion Service Delivery Model in addition to delivering ongoing mental health capacity training and developing guidelines and courses on Trauma and Violence Informed approaches.

The focus of the event was to provide an overview of the project over the last three years, the accomplishments, challenges, issues, and what can be done to move forward beyond this project. The event also shared the lessons learned, recommendations and preliminary findings from the project evaluation.

The two-day exchange brought together key players and professionals across immigrant and refugee serving organizations, primary and mental health care, leaders, researchers, and funders.

The Key Objectives of the event were:

- Share lessons learned from the implementation of the Mental Health Integrated Service Delivery Model
- Share the experiences, challenges, and triumphs of organizations that have implemented the model
- Enhance cross-sectoral collaboration between settlement, primary care, and mental health sectors
- Implementation of OCASI Trauma and Violence Informed guidelines at Immigrant and Refugee Serving organizations
- Capacity building and knowledge sharing on Trauma-informed care and practice approach at work
- Interactive discussion, ideas and planning on the future for mental health care in the refugee and immigrant-serving sector

Session 1: Mental Health Promotion project journey – Sajedeh Zahraei

The presentation focused on the goals and the objectives of the project, development of the integrated service model, lesson learned and challenges. OCASI acknowledged all the project partners involved in all aspects of the project for the last three years including proposal development, guideline development, design of the model, providing ongoing workshops and trainings, and participating in the monthly advisory meetings. Four of the partners formally piloted the project at their agency.

- The three-year project started with the establishment of the advisory committee, conducting the need assessment and environmental scan to look at the promising practice. Based on the findings the integrated service model was developed which is a client-centred model with four components: Client mental, staff mental health, organizational capacity, and collaboration.

- In 2019-2020 Rexdale Women Centre and Polyculture Immigration services were the first pilot site to implement the model. In 2020-21 OCASI piloted the model at The Neighborhood Organization and Mennonite New Life Center.
- TVIA guidelines and course were launched in 2020. These guidelines were not part of the initial project plan and evolved during the project. It was the integration of anti-racism and anti-oppressive, taking the cultural care approach, structural and historical issues into account. OCASI collaborated with project partners and delivered capacity-building training for the sector.

The project is finalizing the evaluation report and developing the overall report. The feedback gathered from this event will be presented to the advisory committee to discuss the sustainability and scaling up of the opportunities. OCASI is also looking at other opportunities for cross-sector collaboration and will continue to advocate for the need for onsite mental health support, holistic and wrap-around services for the newcomer population.

Session 2&3: Pilot Project sites: Leticia Esquivel (MNLCT), Malini Singh (TNO)

The Neighborhood Organization and Mennonite New Life Center shared their experience implementing the model at their agencies, their success, and challenges.

The implementation of the project went through different phases: need assessment, focus groups, interviews with leadership, staff, and clients to better understand the needs in relation to mental health. Both agencies selected newcomer youth as their target population and had a positive experience from the peer support group.

The staff at the pilot sites participated in the TVIA training facilitated by OCASI and reported increased knowledge and understanding of the client's potential exposure to traumatic events and implications.

By involving in this project, both organizations started looking at the mental health and wellbeing of their staff, especially during the pandemic. A staff wellness committee was created, wellness activities were formalized which had a positive impact on staff mental health and open conversation around staff mental health to end stigma.

Both project partners shared recommendations to increase programs for youth, create safer workplaces through policies, establish working groups with health experts and facilitate connections between mental health and primary care to have onsite support.

Session 4: Pilot Site Youth Presentations – MNLCT Peer leaders

- The target population for the pilot sites was based on the need assessment findings done at the beginning of the project. Some of the topics for the groups were fostering mental health wellbeing, self-care, managing daily lives, managing schools amidst a pandemic etc.
- The peer leaders were recruited from the community and were trained by the OCASI staff using CMHA's 'Peer group facilitator training program'. Peers carried out all aspects of the programs, recruited participants, promoting the program, decided topics, designing the material, and participated in the final evaluation. The peers had a lot of autonomy and decision-making power to host the program which was the unique component of the model. Due to COVID restrictions, peer leaders used novel and creative strategies including, social media to help promote programs.
- The videos highlighted and shared the experience of the peers as there were both successes and challenges such as difficulty engaging them in the different activities and, the group had to figure out ways to engage all youth in the activities.
- The peers also suggested to accommodate youth needs, give them space and time to open up instead of enforcing anything upon them.

Session 5: Recommendations and Lessons Learned - Sonja Nerad

The presentation shared the finding and the lessons learned from the pilot sites.

Evaluation framework: included evaluating the different phases and components of the project, collected and reviewed project data.

The evaluation framework was based on the four areas of project activity:

- Foundation for Success: Established the Advisory Committee and conducted the Needs Assessment/Environmental Scan
- MHP Model: Designed and pilot tested the MHP Model with 4 sites
- Training and Capacity Building: Developed and delivered professional development programs
- Knowledge Exchange: Undertook evaluation, learning and knowledge exchange

Results:

- Client mental health: improved self-esteem and confidence and improved knowledge and skills to address loneliness, depression, anxiety, relationships, etc.
- Staff mental health: Provide leadership and management supports to sustain commitment, assess staff wellness needs on a regular basis, sustain wellness committees.
- Organization capacity: Leverage the cross-sector collaboration, implement a range of partnerships to address needs – shared care, referral pathways, advocate to prioritize and plan for newcomer mental health at local health planning tables, OHTs, LIPs.
- Capacity: ~ 1,949 people participated in training over 3 years.

Recommendation:

- Build management competency and provide supports for MH needs
- Commit financial resources Pursue strategic collaboration
- Undertake system-level strategy for formal inter-sectoral partnerships
- and agreements between immigrant settlement and health/mental health sectors
- Recognize that mental health enables newcomers to achieve immediate and intermediate settlement and integration outcomes
- Add mental health services to the list of core settlement programs
- Undertake cross-governmental collaboration to foster and promote sustainable models of MH
- Incentivize (financial) physicians and MH providers to serve newcomers
- Equitable allocation/reallocation of MH system resources

Session Summaries

Day 2: March 3rd, 2021

Session 1: Approaches to Capacity Building in the MHP Project Aman Sallh - Dena Badawi

The presentation focused on framing capacity building as one of the components of the service model. A strength and unique feature of the project was utilizing partnerships in the sector to develop and deliver capacity-building initiatives. The main aim was to strengthen the response of the sector to mental health needs in newcomer populations through improving skills in client care, improving staff wellness, and building organizational capacity and mental health policy.

Approaches to Capacity Building in the MHP Project:

1. Developing and facilitating capacity building initiatives (i.e. webinars, workshops, training, online course)
2. Hosting evidence-based skills training and certification
3. Improving organizational capacity through policy development and guidelines

Due to the pandemic, OCASI shifted the model to an entirely virtual platform, and it allowed it to reach a larger and more diverse audience across the province.

Session 2 & 3: Discussing Cross-Sectoral Partnership in the Project and Implementing Mental Health Initiatives: Serena Nudel and Alexandra Hanania, Yasmin Dossal

Serena Nudel and Alexandra Hanania from Access Alliance shared their art therapy embroidery program for Arabic women to address their mental health, domestic violence, and settlement concerns. The women reflected their experiences through symbolically embroidered stories. The program significantly reduced social and emotional isolation and forging a cross-cultural friendship. The program also used an interdisciplinary approach by involving professionals such as community engagement workers, counsellors, and therapists. The group was able to help participants to reduce and cope with stress, promote relaxation, express emotion through embroidery and feeling a sense of self.

Yasmine from COSTI shared Partnerships and collaborations to reduce access barriers. As a project partner, COSTI assisted OCASI in the development of the different phases of the service model and reviewed the TVIA and MH policies guidelines. Additionally, they provided Capacity building and knowledge transfer workshops for front-line workers in the settlement sector.

Insights as a member of the Advisory Committee: Burnout in the sector is an invisible issue; self-care is important, well being of clients and should be given priority at all levels of government, demand for more Mental Health Promotion Pilot initiatives within the GTA.

The presentation also suggested:

- To bring together a pool of experts to find sustainable and replicable solutions, builds connections between service users, service providers, and institutions.
- Have Sustainable funding for mental health services, partnership building with primary care and mental health services, Implement trauma-informed care guidelines/policies within the agency Hire qualified staff with specific expertise and competitive salaries.

Session 4: Discussing Cross Sectoral Partnership in Project and Implementing Mental Health Initiatives - Teresa Dremetsikas and Maria Lo

Both presenter Teresa Demetris(CCVT) and Maria Lo (Hong Fook) started with acknowledging OCASI work on supporting staff and leadership mental health at the workplace. The presentations highlighted the cross-sectoral collaboration and their contribution to the project life cycle through capacity building across the sector. Both presenters shared their participation in the advisory committee, opportunity to collaborate with other organizations and strengthen the existing partnership. The project also gave space to the partners to exchange ideas and grow together. CCVT shared the essential concept of building a model of support to assist survivors of torture and the elements that have shaped their current model and approach. Some elements from CCVT's Trauma-Informed approach were used in developing OCASI TVIA guidelines.

Honk Fook shared their experience in delivering online training in collaboration with OCASI and great appreciation received from the sector.

Recommendations from the participants:

- Increase funding for mental health services for newcomers.
- Help to identify MH needs in the settlement sector and room for both Standardization and Specialization.
- Settlement agencies staff to increase their capacity in working with clients facing MH issues, especially during a pandemic.
- Invite people with lived experience and field experts to co-present to reduce stigma related to mental health.
- Continue to support a cross-sector knowledge exchange as an effective health promotion approach.
- Resource mobilization and funding is a priority
- Culture-specific training required for front-line workers.
- Tailor the mental health services to address the unique and specific needs of the newcomer population.
- Cross-pollination between settlement, mental health, and clinical support. More room for culturally specific agencies to help with shelters
